

T. E. FARRELL IS NAMED HEAD OF CATHOLIC UNION

Timothy E. Farrell, East Lincoln avenue, was elected president of the south regional union of Holy Name societies on Sunday. The election was held at a meeting in St. Joseph's parish in Dallastown.

This is the first time that the presidency of the union—which includes the Holy Name societies in York, Adams and Franklin counties—has been held by a member of the St. Francis Xavier parish.

Other officers chosen on Sunday follow:

Vice president, Francis Hemler, McSherrystown; secretary, Edward Dillan, Orttanna; treasurer, J. Clyde Sweeney, York, and marshal, Charles P. Groft, Conewago.

The retiring president is Lawrence Allen, of York. He presided at the Dallastown meeting.

Announcement was made Sunday that the annual banquet of the union will be held in the Alcazar ballroom, York, on May 1. The principal speaker for the occasion will be the Rev. Fr. H. C. Graham, O.P., national director of Holy Name societies. He resides in New York city.

It is expected that a color guard from each Boy Scout troop in the three counties will take part in the banquet program.

The next quarterly meeting of the union will be held at the St. Vincent parish house in Hanover on July 9.

Among the speakers at Dallastown were the Rev. Fr. Mark McElwee, Buchanan Valley, regional Holy Name director for York, Adams and Franklin counties; the Rev. Fr. Patrick McGee, McSherrystown; the Rev. Fr. Robert Hartnett, New Oxford, and the Rev. Father Burke, Abbottstown.

Despite the weather hundreds of Methodists crowded into First Methodist Episcopal church, York, Sunday for the services of the central Pennsylvania conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The Rev. Dr. A. S. Asick, of New Cumberland, retired, presided over the love feast at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

By the time of the regular morning worship service at 10:30 o'clock hundreds had to be seated in other rooms of the church, where the service in the sanctuary was heard by amplification. More than 1,500 persons were present. Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, D. C., spoke.

Some Fishermen Report Catching Limit of Trout

Although fishermen complained that it was too cold and too rainy for conditions approaching satisfactory trout fishing weather there were scattered reports of Waltonites who returned with their creel limits on Saturday, first day of the trout fishing season.

J. G. Swope, Fairfield, had his limit of 10 brook trout from the upper waters of Tom's creek fishing from daylight until 6:30 o'clock Saturday morning. He used worms and minnows. Four of the fish measured 10½ inches each, but the others were smaller.

Barton Poth, Aspers, an expert fly fisherman, brought home 10 trout from a Saturday fishing trip to Boiling Springs where he used only artificial lures.

The fairer sex laid claim to some of the best records made Saturday. Mrs. John Fidler, Biglerville, wife of the president of the Adams County Fish and Game association, caught nine trout, while her companion, Mrs. Earl Heiges, Hanover, caught seven. Mrs. Heiges had a 12-inch rainbow trout to her credit, the largest fish taken by the pair.

County Agent M. T. Hartman was in the crowd that started fishing shoulder to shoulder on the banks of Nary's dam near Orttanna, at 12:01 o'clock Saturday morning. He met with the same lack of success reported by others at that spot during the early hours but pulled in seven trout in upper Marsh creek before breakfast.

Denies Feeding Report
John A. Sheffer, Barlow street, caught seven trout in a tour of several favorite fishing streams and dams. His largest fish measured 10½ inches.

John Fidler, president of the county sportsmen's association, declared emphatically that the association did not feed the fish in Nary's and Hartman's dams on Friday or Friday night as is being incorrectly reported in some quarters today. He said that the association had found it necessary to place food in those dams since recent trout stockings there from state hatcheries but that little feeding was done last week and none on Friday.

R. C. Anderson, county game protector also disclaimed any responsibility for the presence of large quantities of "hamburger" found in the two dams early Saturday morning by prospective trout fishermen. The disappointed anglers blamed the imported food for the failure of the Pledge No Fighting Until After 60 Years of Age

Lancaster, Pa., April 17 (AP)—On the theory that wars are started—not fought—by "financiers and politicians" over 60 years old, a group of Franklin and Marshall college students pledged themselves today not to fight before that age.

Frank Lewenburg, a sophomore from Newton Centre, Massachusetts, founded the "after 60 club" with the statement:

"We are not pacifists but we think we should not have to fight for the financiers and politicians, most of whom are over 60."

"We are willing to fight after those fellows do or after we are 60. But let's draft them first."

Lewenburg said he hoped to start branches of the club in other colleges.

Supreme Court Oath Given Douglas Today

Washington, April 17 (AP)—An oath to support the constitution and to administer justice impartially today made 40-year-old William O. Douglas the youngest member of the supreme court in 127 years.

The former chairman of the securities commission, who rose in life from a newsboy and janitor, took his seat on the nation's highest tribunal before a packed courtroom.

Douglas was appointed to succeed Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who retired.

The new justice took his seat at the extreme left of Chief Justice Hughes, where the youngest member of the court always sits.

trout to show interest in the bait they offered.

Fidler said the person or persons who placed the food in the waters had done so without any official authorization of any sort.

Sunday's showers saw only a scattered few fishermen along county streams and followers of the sport were displeased too with today's weather. They declared that without any rain after today, stream conditions would not be good for trout fishing until Thursday at the earliest.

MRS. RANDLE, ILL, MAY NOT ATTEND TRIAL

Rosalyn Randle, better known in Gettysburg and Adams county as Mrs. Helen Randle, self-styled health and diet expert charged with declaring that she could cure most diseases and teach immunity to all, was to go on trial today in a District of Columbia court for obtaining money under false pretenses — if she is not too ill to appear.

Mrs. Randle delivered "health and diet" lectures here in July, 1933, and disappeared a few hours before officers from Dauphin county arrived here with court papers to serve upon her. Since that time reports have reached Gettysburg involving her in police and court news in several sections of the country.

Mrs. Randle was indicted last December, charged with getting $500 from Mrs. Catherine H. Reed, of 1831 California street, northwest, Washington, D. C., for "curing" her son, Rufus Reed, of a "malformation of the brain" which induced a "suicide complex." The boy's brain was normal, the indictment said; he had no suicide complex, and he was a brilliant student at the University of Pennsylvania.

Pleaded Not Guilty
Mrs. Randle met the indictment with a not guilty plea and a statement in which she blamed the charge on a desire to humiliate her.

Recently, Mrs. Randle was indicted again, on eight counts of using the mail to defraud. She was charged with mailing claims that she was a graduate of many universities, had a long career in many healing sciences, could cure most diseases, had treated 1,000 persons without failure, could teach immunity to all diseases and stipulated that her clients must pay $500 in advance.

Bond $1,000
Mrs. Randle pleaded not guilty to the mail fraud and her bond fixed at $1,000, after Assistant District Attorney Caldwell told the court she had been prosecuted for practicing medicine without a license in Massachusetts and for false pretenses in North Carolina.

Defense Attorney Robert H. McNeill, has notified Caldwell that Mrs. Randle has been under a physician's care several days and may not be able to come into court today for trial. The trial is scheduled before Justice Adkins.

Clipper's Inspection Flight Over Ocean Ends

Baltimore, April 17 (AP)—Pan-American Airways officials checked results of the Yankee clipper's inspection flight today, and indicated regular trans-Atlantic passenger service will be inaugurated soon after federal authorization is received.

Back in the home port after an 11,000-mile flight to Foyens, Ireland, via the Azores, Lisbon, Marseilles and Southampton, Captain Harold Gray called facilities for the regular service "adequate" and added "I'm ready to go whenever they see fit."

The clipper arrived Sunday at 12:41 p. m. (E.S.T.) from Bermuda, where it had stopped briefly on a hop from Horta, the Azores.

It left Baltimore March 26 with 21 men, the largest number ever carried in a heavier-than-air craft on a trans-Atlantic flight.

Dr. George D. Stahley, 89, Member Of College Faculty 50 Years, Dies

One of Gettysburg's Oldest Graduates

DR. GEORGE D. STAHLEY

Dr. Stahley Served College Under 6 Of 7 Presidents

Dr. George D. Stahley, who died Sunday evening at his home here, contributed an article to the history of Gettysburg college, published in 1932, in which he revealed that as student and professor he had served under six of the seven presidents the college has had. The article, entitled "Going to College Sixty-Five Years Ago," follows:

There were three of us, in addition to our pastor, who was our valued "Guide, philosopher and friend," and the manner of our entrance into Gettysburg in the fall of 1867, via the Hanover Junction railroad, was to us both unique and interesting. As we alighted from the train, we saw a large crowd of people on the platform, apparently there to greet us. But we learned afterwards that it was the custom of the people of Gettysburg thus regularly to meet the incoming evening train. It was the only entertainment for the town then in vogue, and the people made the most of it.

Our pastor knew his Latin and Greek perfectly, and it was his ambition to give us the classical preparation necessary to meet the entrance requirements of Pennsylvania college, but it was up to our parents to provide us with a clothing outfit. And as our pastor, who in our community was the final authority on all questions heavenly and mundane, wore a shawl, each of us was provided with a shawl. But much to our amazement when we arrived at (Continued on Page Two)

RELIEF ROLLS ARE REDUCED

Harrisburg, April 17 (AP)—Pennsylvania's relief problem, in the eyes of the Department of Public Assistance, assumed its brightest aspect in five months today with the removal of 13,004 persons from direct relief rolls.

While a house subcommittee assembled to seek a compromise between two widely-differing proposals to alter the relief organization, Secretary Howard Russell announced that the week ending April 8 saw the "sharpest weekly drop since mid-November" of 1938 in the number on the state dole. At the same time new applications for state aid decreased about 18 per cent, he reported.

The cut of 13,004 for the week included 2,082 persons who received private employment, 1,900 who began work on W.P.A. projects and 3,450 given unemployment compensation.

Approximately 749,000 persons were left on the direct relief rolls, Russell said. Expenditures for the week were $1,753,873, about $18,400 less than the preceding week.

13 Fewer County Cases

There was a net reduction of 13 relief cases on the Adams county rolls during the week that ended April 8. This reduction was brought about by the closing of 17 cases and the opening of only four.

D. Stahley, 89, Member Of College Faculty 50 Years, Dies

Funeral Service Tuesday for Recipient Of Many Professional Honors;

Native of Easton

Dr. George Diehl Stahley, 89, one of the oldest alumni of Gettysburg college and for 50 years a member of its faculty, died Sunday evening at 10:45 o'clock at his home, 300 Carlisle street, after a long illness.

Doctor Stahley had been under the care of a physician and nurses for more than a year as infirmities of age caused his condition to become more serious. A week ago there was a definite turn for the worse and on Saturday afternoon he lapsed into unconsciousness from which he never rallied. Mrs. Stahley, Dr. C. G. Crist, the family physician, and two nurses were present when he died.

Received Many Honors

The recipient of many honors from professional associates and college and alumni groups, Doctor Stahley became professor emeritus of biology and hygiene at the college in 1920 and also served as medical director until 1936 when he retired from active participation in college affairs after having served as a member of the faculty since 1889.

A native of Easton, Doctor Stahley was a son of the late Joseph and Hannah (Christman) Stahley. He was born September 9, 1850.

Three years after he graduated from Gettysburg college in 1871 with the degree of bachelor of arts, the institution awarded him a master's degree. He received his degree of doctor of medicine from the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania in 1875.

For 12 years following his graduation from medical school he served as an assistant physician at the State hospital at Harrisburg and practiced in Easton from 1887 to 1889 as a specialist in nervous diseases.

Joined Faculty in 1889

In 1889 when Gettysburg college created the chair of physical culture and hygiene, Doctor Stahley was named as the first incumbent, serving in that position until 1897 when he was made Graff professor of biology. He served in that capacity until he became professor emeritus in 1920 and was named medical director.

For two years before he joined the faculty of Gettysburg college he had served as a member of the board of trustees of the institution.

He was a member of the board of directors of the Lutheran Theological seminary here and at one time was a director of Irving college at Mechanicsburg.

Doctor Stahley was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and held membership in the American Public Health association.

Given Alumni Plaque

Recently he was honored by the alumni association of Gettysburg college with the presentation to him of one of the first of the coveted alumni plaques for distinguished service.

Fraternally Doctor Stahley was connected with the Pennsylvania Epsilon chapter of Phi Kappa Psi, an organization which dedicated its current issue of "The Torch" to Doctor Stahley who had been a member of the chapter for 64 years.

Frequently sought out for advice in matters relating to the fraternity and the college, Doctor Stahley recently was quoted as stating these views on the relative importance of phases of a college education:

"It is a fair question for debate whether or not fair scholarship along with participation in college activities is not after all the best training for life's work. One thing is certain that a substantial maintenance of sound scholarship, not necessarily of the prize grade, is essential to success in life. I do not feel like endorsing the rather strong statement that there is forty times more chance for success if you are in the upper tenth of your class."

Damage to the Shultz car was estimated at $25. The other vehicle, a furniture truck, was damaged to the extent of about $2.

Fairfield Glee Club, Band Concert Saturday

GERMANY WILL REPLY TO PEACE PLEA APRIL 28

(By the Associated Press)
Reichsfuehrer Hitler today summoned the reichstag for April 28 to hear his reply to President Roosevelt's peace proposals as violent fascist and Nazi press attacks pointed to Italian and German rejection of them.

Britain pressed ahead with her anti-aggressor alliance and continued re-inforcing her empire defenses. Soviet Russia was reported in London to have promised airplane and other aid to the British-French coalition.

The reaction to the President's proposals in Berlin and Rome lent substance to the general tenor of world comment—courageous, statesmanlike but probably futile.

Although Hitler was said officially to have called the reichstag because he considered the President's message "so important," German newspapers were bitter in attacks on the President's request for at least 10 years of guaranteed peace.

Fascists in Rome indicated that Germany and Italy would answer "no" with one voice both to the President's appeal for peace pledges to 31 nations and to his suggestion of world conferences.

Premier Mussolini conferred during the week-end with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's right hand man who is in Rome, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister. Hitler's views were understood to have been injected directly in the consultations by telephone.

Soviet Russia's reported promise of fighting planes and other war material to help Poland and Rumania defend their independence against attack was said to meet Polish and Rumanian objections to a pledge of help from the red army.

In Paris, French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet invited Russian and Turkish envoys for new talks to extend the lineup in which Anglo-French offers pledges have been given to Poland, Rumania and Greece.

The Union of South Africa sent 500 police under sealed orders to southwest Africa, a German colony before the war which is now administered by the Union of South Africa under a League of Nations mandate.

With 13 French warships concentrated at Gibraltar, France virtually had assumed naval control of the western entrance to the Mediterranean, key to Britain's armed might there.

Support for President

Washington, April 17 (AP)—A quick demonstration of pan-American solidarity behind President Roosevelt's peace proposals heartened administration officials today in the face of indications that Germany and Italy would reject or evade any anti-war pledge.

Just as the western world supported Mr. Roosevelt in his appeal to Adolf Hitler during the Munich crisis last fall, 16 Latin American republics and Canada expressed commendation during the week-end of his new plea against European aggression.

Officials here were hopeful that similar statements would be forthcoming from Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras and Paraguay to make the American reaction unanimous.

The American countries heard from Sunday night were Canada, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Salvador, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela.

Typical of the comment was the statement of the Argentine President R. M. Ortiz, that his nation "supports the President in his generous gesture of such high American inspiration." Said Prime Minister MacKenzie King of Canada:

"Mr. Roosevelt offers a peace conference before a war instead of after it. No country can lightly reject that opportunity of saving civilization and saving itself."

COLLEGE COMEDY

"You Can't Take It With You," a comedy was well received by the audience in the Gettysburg college gymnasium on Saturday evening. The prize-winning play of two seasons ago on Broadway, was presented by a cast of Awl and Nightingale dramatic club players. Much of the humor of the comedy was ably presented by Robert Hanson, Dorothy Yingst and James McCormick.

REPORT ON SALE

Officers of the county chapter of the Red Cross reported receipts from the three-day rummage sale conducted last week-end in the former Citizen's Trust company building amounted to more than $135. It was expected that the sale will net about $120. Members of the committee in charge expressed their appreciation to donors and those who helped with the sale for their assistance.

STOCK REPORT

New York, April 17 (AP)—While pressure was exceptionally light, leading stocks backed away from gains of more than 2 points in today's market. Mild support appeared from time to time and cut top losses a trifle, but dealing dwindled further around mid-day.

Gettysburg we discovered that shawls for young men had "just gone out" and were regarded as "simply impossible."

The trio to whom I am referring consisted of John Wagner, William H. Dunbar and the writer, and it is not inappropriate to refer to them as "raw recruits." After the examination ordeals were over, the professors looked quizzically solemn, but as Pastor Burrell of the class of 1855 had established a reputation as a master of the classics, and as we had been exposed to his instructions for three years, and hoping that the contagion had caught, we were allowed to enter.

Very loud and very long dressing gowns were worn by the students in 1867. A student without a dressing gown was regarded as lacking in scholarly equipment. They varied as to quality according to the purse of the owner, but they all vied with each other in regard to the loudness of appeal, the colors of the rainbow and the gaudy figures of the circus clown stood no comparison.

The two literary societies were powerful factors in the education of the student of those days. They had their halls, their programs and the customs. One custom was that each member wear slippers when entering the meeting hall, the floor of which was covered with Brussels carpet. We paid good money for our Brussels carpet, and cow hide leather shoes with nailed heels should profane it—to disregard the rule was an offense, and the offender was fined ten cents. In Philo Society the front of the president's desk was provided with a large mirror, so that the orator could witness the reflection of his own gestures. That may be the reason, oratorically speaking, why there were many Demostheneses in those days.

Lack of space prevents me from speaking of Buehler's book and drug store, which was a rendezvous for the professors for many years. In my student days, the professors did not greatly encourage comradeship, so that Buehler's was a sanctuary, as far as the students were concerned. 1889, when I entered the faculty, I found the coterie there gathered, made up of seminary and college professors, most delightful companions. I noted that profound questions were not discussed, but that the time was passed in pleasanties and in discussing current topics. The time of gathering was always after the distribution of the evening mail.

From a "human interest" point of view, I hope it will not be inappropriate for me to say that of the seven presidents Gettysburg College has had during its history, as student and instructor, I have had the pleasure of being under six of them. President Baugher, the second president, died during my Freshman year. One rather disconcerting incident comes to my mind, when, during "study hour," one afternoon, President Baugher quietly opened our door and suggested mildly that "some one is out of his room." The trio had just finished a Greek lesson, and were reminiscing rather loudly under an open ventilator. "Study hours" were strictly observed in those good old days of "loco parentis."—O Tempora! O mores!

GEORGE D. STAHLEY, '71

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Attorney General Murphy suggested today that federal grants to the states might prove a possible solution of the nation's parole problem. In a speech prepared for President Roosevelt's national parole conference, he charged that the administration of parole always had been "a source of scandal" and deserved "a thorough job of housecleaning."

Unemployment and relief problems make it difficult to determine at this time, Murphy said, whether federal aid to the states for parole administration was warranted. "But at least," he added, "it suggests for the future a possible solution to a serious problem."

"Ask the man in the street to tell you what he thinks of parole," he said, "and the chances are he will tell you it's a way of 'beating the rap' or just another kind of sentimental 'molly-coddling.'"

But "few men die in prison," the attorney general added. Prison doors swing out as well as in, and with almost equal frequency.

True rehabilitation can be achieved, Murphy concluded, only with a "modern parole system under unified, central control, free from venal politics, administered by a trained, competent staff, and equipped with every technique and device that modern science can provide.

President Roosevelt will speak to the delegates at 6 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.

The two-day meeting, attended by jurists, governors, police and prison officials, was called at the President's suggestion in order to correct "widespread misconceptions of the true nature and purpose of parole."

Interment will be made on Wednesday at Easton.

The honorary pallbearers will include Dr. Charles H. Huber; Dr. Herbert C. Alteman, Dr. M. Coover, Dr. Clyde B. Stover, Dr. C. F. Sanders, Dr. Karl Grimm, Dr. John Aberly, Dr. C. G. Crist, John D. Keith, Esq., Dr. John B. McAllister and the Rev. H. H. Beidleman.

Representatives of the college faculty, the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity and the student body will be the active pallbearers.

190 TEACHERS ON STRIKE IN COAL SECTIONS

Shamokin, Pa., April 17 (AP)—Clanging school bells went unheeded today in two anthracite communities as 190 unpaid teachers made good a protest "holiday" for their salaries and more than 5,000 school children shelved their studies for other pursuits.

Sticking to their declaration "We won't come back until we are paid," none of the teachers in nearby Coaltownship, Northumberland county, and Gilberton borough in adjoining Schuylkill county reported for duty at the 22 schools in the two districts.

The teachers closed their classrooms last Friday. They claim salaries for five to six months are overdue for a total of $208,000.

While some teachers waited to see what would happen, others went ahead with teaching at neighborhood classes in coal town back yards.

One of these, Miss Mary Kufka, at Excelsior, lined up neighborhood children on a backyard bench and sought to keep them apace with the studies they missed in school.

There was some talk of a tax strike by property owners and small town business men who expressed sympathy with the teachers. A meeting to consider such a strike was called for tonight in American Legion hall.

Those favoring such a strike were quoted as saying large coal companies, greatest tax sources in the communities, had not paid their full taxes.

"They have been on a tax strike for years," spokesmen said announcing tonight's meeting. "It's our turn now."

While boys shouldered their favorite fishing rods and girls stayed at home to play "house," Coal township authorities called a special meeting in an attempt to find some financial aid for the penniless teachers.

In Schuylkill county, Rep. Paul L. Wagner said he would introduce in the legislature tonight a bill authorizing tax-delinquent coal companies to pay taxes in installments.

LEHIGH TRIPS BULLET NINE

Coach Ira Plank's Gettysburg college baseball team lost its opening contest to Lehigh at Bethlehem Saturday afternoon 7-4.

Lehigh pounded the offerings of Witman and Felder for 13 hits while Bommer escaped in his one inning term. Witman hurled the first four innings and retired with the score 4-1 against him.

The Bullets put on a rally in the first half of the eighth which was good for three runs to tie the count. A pair of singles and successive triples by Bender and Hamilton pushed over the runs.

In the last half of the eighth the Engineers landed on Felder for three runs to sew up the contest before Bommer halted the attack.

The Plankmen were a bit wobbly in the field and committed no less than four errors, several of which figured in the opponents' scoring.

On Thursday afternoon the Bullets meet the strong Villanova nine here in the first home game of the season.

Favors Social Security Law for Church Workers

Philadelphia, April 17 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Paul P. Huyett, president of the Philadelphia conference of the Evangelical Lutheran ministerium of Philadelphia and adjacent states, said today he would recommend to the conference convention that all church workers, including ministers, be included in the social security act.

He said he would propose that the convention, scheduled to open at 4 p. m. today, urge congress to cancel amendments now excluding church members from provisions of the act.

Doctor Huyett said the pensions bureau of the United Lutheran church in America has requested opposition to such legislation.

"As it now stands, the social security act is class legislation because it excludes certain groups," he said. "The feeling among many of our men is that if clergymen are not included, at least all other church employees should be. My feeling is that all should be included."

Meadville, Pa., April 17 (AP)—Back to teach at Allegheny college where she was one of the first women students in the 1870's, Ida M. Farrell, the author, spoke eagerly Saturday of "getting back to my study of Lincoln, the greatest leader in democracy the world has ever known."

The 81-year-old authority on Lincoln, in high spirits after a trip from New York, noted with satisfaction the biography course she will teach for four weeks on material concerning the emancipator's life.

OHIO RIVER IS AT FLOOD MARK IN CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, April 17 (AP)—River-front families along the Ohio prepared to leave their homes for the second time in two months today as water lapped closer to their doors. The Ohio surged up 20 feet in 48 hours here as small streams overflowed after a five-inch rainfall.

Emergency relief agencies were marshalled in Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia. Four persons were reported drowned in swollen tributaries in that area.

Rain was forecast in the watershed from Pittsburgh to Louisville. Terming it a "flash flood" earlier, Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux said his forecast of a 55 to 58 foot crest would be revised higher should rainfall become general throughout the area.

Two were dead in Indiana as small streams left their banks.

Ten field agents of the national Red Cross were sent into the threatened area and across-river Kentucky cities prepared to feed and house homeless residents should the water climb to the expected 58-foot level. The floodweary families were routed in February when the Ohio reached a similar crest.

At Ashland, Kentucky, the water rose to within four feet of flood and Devereaux predicted a crest one foot above this mark by tonight or Tuesday on the basis of present rainfall.

Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—High water rolling down on Pittsburgh through the Monongahela valley from West Virginia brought a prediction of near flood stage for the downtown Golden Triangle today.

Government Observer W. S. Brozman said the Ohio river would reach 21 or 22 feet today at the confluence of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers, then keep on mounting toward the 25-foot level with continued rains.

Operation of the Tygart dam in West Virginia appeared to be keeping the rapidly rising Monongahela within controllable heights. The Allegheny was reported falling after reaching a stage of 10-58 feet at Franklin and observers predicted it would contribute little to the Ohio's rise.

LOUIS FIGHTS ROPER TONIGHT

Los Angeles, April 17 (AP)—Heavyweight champion Joe Louis remained an overwhelming favorite to belt Jack Roper back into the ash can of pugilism today as Los Angeles awaited the bell for their ten-round championship encounter at Wrigley field tonight.

Barring what would doubtless be the biggest upset of all times, the Brown Bomber from Detroit was expected to make this sixth defense of his crown as successfully simple as most of the previous title affairs.

Betting on the outcome found Louis a ten to one better choice, with most of the wagering centering on how many rounds Roper will or will not last.

A minimum $100,000 "gate" was expected by co-promoters Mike Jacobs of New York and Tom Gallery of Los Angeles, with Louis getting 45 per cent and Roper a challenger's 10 per cent.

The big bout of the card was slated to go on at 10 p. m. (Pacific Standard Time).

Louis, more methodic than brilliant in his training, was expected to scale around 200 pounds and Roper 197 when they weigh in at noon.

SENATOR SAYS LABOR BOARD NEEDS CHANGES

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Demanding fundamental changes in the Wagner labor act, Senator Burke (D-Neb.) charged today that the National Labor Relations board has been "wholly biased and unfair."

Burke outlined to the senate labor committee a series of proposed amendments to the labor law which he said were designed to effect a lasting peace between employers and employees.

The amendments would revamp the present three-member labor board to give representation to employees, employers and the public; would free employees from "interference, restraint or coercion from any source"; and would permit employers to request elections to determine which union was to represent their workers.

In addition, his amendments would require that a majority of all eligible employees approve a union before the union could represent them. Under present law, the labor board has ruled that only a majority of those voting was necessary.

Burke said there was a "widespread conviction" that a board representing workers, employers and the public would go far toward relieving what he termed "an impossible situation."

"Needless to say, employers and the public feel that the cards are stacked against them," he asserted.

"The employer feels that he is prejudged, that he is to be found guilty of whatever is charged against him if by any stretch of authority such a finding can be made."

Declaring that "the statutory closed shop has no place in a democracy," Burke added:

"It does not follow that because a majority want to belong to a certain organization that is any justification for imposing their view upon those who do not want to belong. A democracy which ignores the rights of minorities is a sham."

Under present board rulings, he said, employers deal with any union at their own peril until an election, asked by a union, has been held.

"If he (the employer) guesses wrong," the senator testified, "he is in trouble. Yet the board has insisted upon imposing this hardship upon every well-intentioned employer for fear that some employer might sometime ask for an election before the favored union organizers had a sufficient time to complete an organization drive."

Miss Helen G. Myers, Hanover, telephone operator for the United Telephone company of Pennsylvania has been awarded a Theodore N. Vail medal for her courageous action during the fire which threatened the business section of Hanover on January 10, 1938.

Philip C. Staples, president of the Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania made the announcement of the award to the United operator in Philadelphia today. Miss Myers is one of three so honored. The others who will receive the Bell system's badge of honor for outstanding acts of public service are Miss Anna V. Reiley, a supervisor at the Philadelphia long distance switchboard, and Robert F. Thomas, line foreman at Uniontown. The committee of award gave honorable mention to Miss Marie G. Brady, a switchboard supervisor at Philadelphia, and to Mrs. Leah I. Lewis, an operator at Mt. Jewett.

C. A. Bixler, Gettysburg district manager for the United Telephone company, explained the Vail medals are awarded by the Bell system to telephone employees who by noteworthy acts or services demonstrate those high ideals of public service held by the late Theodore N. Vail, former president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Miss Myers will receive the Vail Medal for her courageous devotion to duty in helping to bring under control a fire which threatened to disrupt telephone service and destroy the business district in Hanover in January a year ago. The blaze was located in the Montgomery Ward building in Hanover.

Called by a subscriber from an apartment adjacent to the telephone office, who said he believed the store was on fire, Miss Myers immediately summoned police to investigate and notified the manager of the store.

Meanwhile, a general alarm was sounded, and she called telephone officials and tenants in apartments next to the burning building. The operating room filled with smoke and awnings and shutters on windows ten feet away caught fire. Despite the danger Miss Myers carried on, calling fire departments from eight nearby towns and handling an unusual volume of calls.

The citation to accompany Miss Myers' medal reads: "For courageous action, good judgment and devotion to duty in maintaining service during an emergency."

Miss Anna V. Reiley, of Philadelphia, will receive the award for her courageous action during a fire in a New York hotel March 6, 1938, where she was staying while on vacation. Awakened by smoke at 4 a. m., she sought out the hotel switchboard on the top floor. There she took a place at the switchboard, assuring her fellow guests that the fire was under control and that there was no danger.

Robert F. Thomas, of Uniontown, was honored for saving the life of a neighbor who was overcome by fumes from an automobile engine last November 24, while working alone in a garage. Summoned to the scene, Thomas rushed the victim to the house and there applied artificial respiration. His prompt action and knowledge of first aid measures resulted in the saving of the life of a fellowman.

ARCHEOLOGIST SAYS TROY RUINS SHOW SIEGE EXPECTED

Athens (AP)—Professor Carl Blegen, the American archeologist who has completed seven years of digging into the ruins of Troy, expresses belief that "there is some truth" in the Helen of Troy legend.

The University of Cincinnati archeologist pictured Troy as "a fortified stronghold with a wall around it" at the time Helen was supposed to have been brought there by kidnapper Paris.

"Inside the wall," Professor Blegen said "there were many houses built on successive terraces rising towards the middle of the citadel."

"The people were ready for a siege. Under floors we found large jars, in which the Trojans used to keep their provisions."

Professor Blegen said he expects his study of pottery found in the ruins "to throw some light on the conditions of living."

"The Trojans had fireplaces, ovens, drains and they led some very simple kind of life," Professor Blegen reports. "We do not know how they were dressed, but we found buttons."

Favors Social Security Law for Church Workers

Philadelphia, April 17 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Paul P. Huyett, president of the Philadelphia conference of the Evangelical Lutheran ministerium of Philadelphia and adjacent states, said today he would recommend to the conference convention that all church workers, including ministers, be included in the social security act.

He said he would propose that the convention, scheduled to open at 4 p. m. today, urge congress to cancel amendments now excluding church members from provisions of the act.

Doctor Huyett said the pensions bureau of the United Lutheran church in America has requested opposition to such legislation.

"As it now stands, the social security act is class legislation because it excludes certain groups," he said. "The feeling among many of our men is that if clergymen are not included, at least all other church employees should be. My feeling is that all should be included."

Author to Lecture On Lincoln's Life

Meadville, Pa., April 17 (AP)—Back to teach at Allegheny college where she was one of the first women students in the 1870's, Ida M. Farrell, the author, spoke eagerly Saturday of "getting back to my study of Lincoln, the greatest leader in democracy the world has ever known."

The 81-year-old authority on Lincoln, in high spirits after a trip from New York, noted with satisfaction the biography course she will teach for four weeks on material concerning the emancipator's life.

ROMANTIC NOTE SCRIBBLER GETS DISAPPOINTING REPLY

Ellinwood, Kans. (AP)—"If you're a girl, please write," said an oil well supply company employee in a note he wrote on a crate of equipment consigned to Arabia.

"I am writing you because there are no girls in this bally country who could write you," said the reply that arrived months later.

"In the first place none of the women here can read or write. In the second place all of them except small babies are veiled. And in the third place they wouldn't be worth looking at even if they weren't veiled."

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS BY AIR

HAWAII, T. H. — The notes for this talk were jotted down 4,000 feet in the air above the Pacific Ocean, on one of the "Baby Clippers" which leave Honolulu each day for the "big island" as Hawaii, which is the largest of the group.

Easily, and smoothly rising above the ground at Rogers Air Port at Honolulu, in a few minutes you see a magnificent view of Oahu, the sunshine bathing the island in a glitter of gold, the rich foliage climbing the mountains from the valleys, appearing like a velvety green carpet, spiced with homes. Silvery ribbons of surf sweep the crescent-shaped Waikiki beach, and you see the riders on their boards, who look like tiny folk indeed from 2,000 feet in the air.

Diamond Head then looms — a different picture than what you see on the ground — a great open bowl that would hold a lot of soup, if filled! No plane is allowed to fly over it as it now holds secrets that no civilian is allowed to know.

In a few moments we see nothing but the crystal dotted, blue set, below — then suddenly, the sea of the Pacific is lost and all about you just below is another sea — a sea of beautiful snow like clouds as far as the eye can see. This passes and the eye catches its first view of Molokai. To the right looms the small island of Lanai, and to the left the beautiful island of Maui, with its lovely small towns along the shore and its great, towering mountain containing the famous Haleakala Crater, which is a part of the recently created National Hawaiian Park — a part located here and a larger part located on the island of Hawaii.

To the right you see another small island, uninhabited, and in about ten minutes the snow-capped Mauna Loa and Mauna Kea, on the island of Hawaii. It was a thrilling sight to see that snow and the mountains, with their ever hovering, roaming clouds, and to view just below the fertile sugar cane fields and the great gorges and series of waterfalls that came to view one after the other. The silvery collar of the island, formed by the constant wash of the sea against the green slopes and valleys that cut in between, was a sight never to forget.

On the trip back to Honolulu you see the great pineapple plantations that cover a portion of the island of Molokai, and the roads look like tiny paths with creeping ants along their way — which, of course, are just automobiles! Great, steep bluffs are seen along the shores of Maui — and you look breathless in wonder and admiration, thinking of the Great Gardener who conceived and shaped these islands into their incomparable Beauty.

For the last 15 minutes on our way out we looked upon Hawaii Island, home of the ancient Hawaiian Kings — then, gradually losing height, we smoothly descended to the earth, and almost without knowing it, we were resting at the Air Port in the interesting city of Hilo — on the youngest island of the Hawaiian group. And our outgoing air journey of 200 miles was ended, after but one hour and twenty-seven minutes!

Old Home Week Murder

BY PHOEBE ATWOOD TAYLOR

The Characters
Asey Mayo, Cape Cod sleuth.
Kay Thayer, girl reporter.

Yesterday: Kay is telling Asey her experience with the criminal.

Chapter 37
DEATH, NOT DESTRUCTION

"If he shot again, he didn't hit me," Kay went on. "I wouldn't have known anyway. I dodged and jerked and switched around as though I had St. Vitus dance. He got hold of me just before you came, and I thought he was going to throttle me, but then you dashed — and you know all I could think of? That ditty about the girl in the saw mill, and the saw coming closer and closer and closer."

"A more appropriate ditty," Sara said, "being 'Nearer My God to Thee.' Kay, I don't know whether to scold you for being utterly bereft of your senses, or to congratulate you on being alive."

"What I'm most interested in," Asey said expectantly, "is the man." Kay sighed.

"Kay, you don't mean you can't tell me anything about him?" "He's a good shot. He's an artful dodger. He's strong—he has fingers like pilliwinks."

"Like what?" Cummings demanded.

"Pilliwinks," Kay said. "They were a torture thing for squeezing fingers. I learned the word from a dictionary, and I've waited ten years for a chance to use it, and my, is it apt! He nearly broke my whole right hand, with one squeeze. Every finger—"

"What was he like?" Asey asked. "If he throttled you, you must have been near enough to see something."

"He had on dark clothes, and a handkerchief over his mouth and chin. I can't tell you if he was a short or tall or anything. He seemed mountainous when I was on the ground, but he didn't when I got onto my feet. It was so dark dimensions didn't matter. I never was really near him. He held me off at an arm's length during the throttling process. Death was his aim. Not destruction, as Dr. Cummings was inclined to think at first. No, Asey, I can't help you a bit."

"Didn't he make a sound, or speak, or cuss, or anything?" "Not a peep out of him, not even an 'Ugh,'" Kay said. "Strong and silent, that was my pal. And a more grimly determined individual I never met. Well, I did what I probably the silliest thing I'll ever do in my life, and from now on, Asey, I'll leave the case to you. Next time I have any hunch that pal's coming, you get told. And I ruined your coat, Jane, to absolutely no avail. I'll buy you another."

"It was awful, perfectly awful!" Eloise was goggle-eyed. "Oh, I think you were brave, I do, really! That awful man—I always say, you can't tell about these reds. No beard, of course, but still red. I'm sorry now I said we'd keep this thing quiet—not that I don't think mother would have preferred it, and of course one must always respect the wishes of the—but just the same, if the people really know that man would—why the papers would have him jailed at once, really. Mr. Mayo, not that I don't think you know best, of course. And I'm always willing to be convinced—but why don't you arrest that man, instantly? It makes my blood boil, to think of that murderer—"

"I'm sure he was going to kill Kay too, if not worse—the nick of time, wasn't it, really? I do think perhaps tomorrow you'd best arrest him, before we're all of us murdered in our beds, at the least."

Dental Disaster

"Are you," Jane's voice was curiously hard, "by any chance talking about Mike Slade?"

"Why of course—who else, I'm sure!" Eloise said nervously. "We know—I mean, we do know, don't we—though of course we keep pretending it's all a mystery—but I'm sure I may say here, in the privacy of our own group—why, we know Mike Slade is the one!"

Jane walked over and stood in front of Eloise.

An uncomfortable silence followed. Twice Sara Leach stated to say something and twice she changed her mind. Everyone knew there was going to be a scene, but no one knew exactly how to stop it.

"So strange of you," Eloise got up from the sea chest on which she had been sitting. "Really, I always said to mother, so strange of her to like that—my dear, really, don't you think you're giving a bit too far? You know—I'm sure mother said often enough—I myself, often wished she had said more—the man's a scoundrel. So unsporting of you, to take this attitude—so—so grim about it, when it's proved to you—"

Jane moved so swiftly that Asey, later, admitted he had not seen the blow that struck Eloise squarely across the mouth. It caught her off balance, and she fell heavily into the corner.

"And the next time you mention Mike Slade," Jane said, "I'll do more than smash your teeth. I'll kill you, d'you hear?"

The shock of Jane's words and her accompanying gesture was so intense that it affected even Dr. Cummings' professional instincts.

While his prospective patient groaned and writhed on the floor, he stared at Jane as she coolly walked across the room, opened the door and departed. For fully ten seconds he was speechless.

"By—by George!" he said. "By George, that girl meant it! Now isn't that extraordinary, when you stop and think it out? That, from a nice appearing girl, apparently in the best of health. Emotionally unstable, that's the answer. Emotionally unstable, d'you happen to know?"

"Doc," Asey pointed to Eloise. "Consider this end of it, will you?" "Go get my other bag," Cummings said to Zeb, "out in the car. Dear me, more hysterics. I suppose—once she finally assimilates the situation, it will probably be an all night job quieting—by George, what's the matter with her? Look—"

Eloise's mouth was working strangely. She put both hands to her jaw.

"Broken, I'll wager," Sara said. "That smack—Asey, what do you do in a case like this? Isn't it assault and battery, or something? The poor woman—"

"Doc," Asey said, "Jane said 'something' about 'smashin' her teeth—say, has she got false teeth? Cause if she has, I bet you they're wedged, or buried."

"Thee theese, thee?" "That's it!" Sara said. "It happened to my mother once. Carry her to—oh, her room, I guess. We'll have to separate Jane and Eloise, under the circumstances, and I'm sure I don't know where we can put Jane, unless it's the tragedy bed in the attic—Kay, I know this isn't helping your head any!"

"Kay's all right," Cummings said. "I shouldn't wonder if Eloise weren't the more badly hurt of the two. Kay's got just a superficial—Zeb—help us here. Oh, put the bag anywhere. That's it. Uh!" he grunted as he helped Asey and Zeb lift Eloise. "Sometimes I think this fad for a slim form is a lot of nonsense, and sometimes in a case like this, I wish there were more of it."

They finally managed to pry Eloise's mouth open and remove her broken plate, which had, as Sara and Asey guessed somehow wedged in such a manner that it locked her jaw.

But once open, Eloise's mouth proceeded to make up for lost time.

She raised such a din that Uncle Jeff and Brinley and Weston, who had been solving town problems down in the living room, came flying up the stairs.

"You can't help," Briefly Asey summed up what had taken place. "You might as well go. Oh, Zeb, see if you can find where Jane went to. In the mood she's in, she's capable to anything at all."

"Asey," Zeb said, "with a great respect for your wishes, the answer is no. The door mat has resigned. This particular worm has turned. Let someone else find Jane and cope with her mood. Not me. She's fooled me once too often. I thought, after yesterday—but that doesn't matter. I'll help you with Eloise, but as for Jane, no."

"I can see how you feel," Asey said. "Wes, you or Brinley, or someone—find Jane for me. Thanks."

"What's the matter with her now?" Brinley nodded his head toward Eloise. "What's happened to her. She sounds as if she was crazy."

"Just lispin'," Asey said. "To use an old Cape phrase, she's gummint' it. You all get along and find Jane."

Obediently the selectmen of Billingsdale marched off to find Jane.

After a while Eloise quieted down.

"Thank heaven," Cummings said. "My, what a nervous system she must have. To be able to take this sort of outburst in your stride, the way she does—by George, you can call women the weaker sex if you want to, but no man would be able to work himself into a frothing state like this, and then snap out of it—what's that you say?"

"Thee theese. In the theece." Eloise pointed to Asey. "Thee theece, thee?"

"She sells sea shells," Cummings recited cheerfully. "By the sea shore. Sea shells she sells, and of that—Eloise, what do you want? Say it again."

She said it again, but the results were not any better.

"I got it," Asey said. "The teeth—you've got spares, have you?" Eloise nodded vigorously.

"Where?" She pointed.

"Oh, the case. The teeth are in the case. Sara, that's your department. Get her teeth."

He tactfully strolled over and stared at a picture of four fat sheep in a field until the process of equipping Eloise with new teeth was completed.

Continued tomorrow.

BUSINESS AID
BILLS PROGRESS IN CONGRESS

Washington, April 17 (AP)—While a half dozen measures designed to help American industry are moving steadily through congress, the administration took two steps today intended to demonstrate government-business harmony.

1. President Roosevelt accepted an invitation to address a forum of the American Retail federation here May 22. Federation officers said the meeting would provide the first opportunity for men representing the entire field of retail distribution to discuss common problems.

2. Secretary of Commerce Hopkins disclosed that an industrial market survey covering more than 3,000 counties will be completed this summer. The report, requested by the National Industrial Advertisers association, will contain figures on industrial production, employment, value of products, cost of material for fuel and power, and mining data.

Of the business proposals now before congress, only one—proposed revision of the Wagner labor relations act—is arousing major controversy. Final action at this session is generally considered doubtful, for Senate Leader Barkley (D-Ky) omitted it from his recent list of "desirable" legislation.

Businessmen and the American Federation of Labor are seeking modifications in the law, over the objections of the labor board to any fundamental change.

In contrast to the fight over the Wagner act, there has been little argument over modifications of the wage-hour law proposed by its administrator, Elmer F. Andrews.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the senate labor committee predicted that non-controversial amendments, such as exemption of white-collar workers from the hour provisions of the law, would be approved at this session.

Suggestions for revising the social security program also are being considered. These would broaden the scope of the act, but would make various changes in the financial set-up as an aid to businessmen.

A bill by Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) would consolidate existing relief agencies into a new public works bureau and would expand social security benefits to the unemployed, the handicapped and the blind. A house committee is studying proposals to bring more workers under the social security program and to start old age pension payments in 1940 instead of 1942.

The question of revising business taxes probably will be considered by the house ways and means committee after the proposed amendments to the social security act are out of the way.

Although some administration officials have expressed opposition to any general tax revision, members of the senate finance committee are preparing to ease existing levies on industry.

TORNADOES IN
4 STATES KILL
41 AND HURT 170

(By the Associated Press)
Tornadoes ripped into four southern states, killed more than 41 persons, injured over 170 and wreaked week-end damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Searchers picking their way through wind-torn debris in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas slowly raised the death toll through early Monday darkness.

Greatest toll was counted at the small cattle-raising community of Center Point, near Collins, Arkansas, where at least 20 persons were killed and an undetermined number were injured as a twister demolished a church soon after completion of a Sunday afternoon funeral service and swept a six-mile area nearby.

Several houses, shorn from their foundations, splintered into the air C.C.C. workers from a nearby camp joined rescue work.

The Rev. Thomas West was among the dead at the Center Point church. Nearly 200 attended the service, but many had left when the tornado hit.

Rain of near-cloudburst proportions accompanied the winds in Arkansas, where nearly a dozen communities in all were struck. The mud it left made rescue work precariously slippery.

In Louisiana, seven persons were killed when a twister whipped at Haynesville residential and business property, leveling a score of homes and tearing away portions of a brick power plant.

Texas counted six deaths—three

FIGHTING PRINCESS

ENLISTS TRIBESMEN FOR CHINA DEFENSE

Kunming (AP)—As war echoes resound in the far interior of China, a girl chieftain of the Peishen Lolo tribe makes ready the defense of her native Yunnan province.

Here are mountain folk, famed as fighters, and Princess Kao Chu-Yu, educated in Shanghai and Nanking, hopes to build from them a formidable guerilla force of 30,000 men.

She has enlisted 4,000 men for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Most of them carry old-fashioned weapons like those used in tribal wars, but every Lolo has a gun.

Most of her fighters were trained for tribal warfare even as children, when they went out to watch the battles and cheer their fighting fathers.

LEGISLATORS FACE 4 MAJOR STATE ISSUES

Harrisburg, April 17 (AP)—Four weighty problems—taxation, appropriations, relief, and school aid—confronted Pennsylvania's lawmakers anew today as the assembly began its thirteenth week.

Some phases of the big four appeared to becoming more complicated almost daily.

The first—taxation—had to be solved before others could be far advanced.

The administration's program, calling for re-enactment of emergency levies first enacted by the Earle administration two years ago, has been waiting in the senate finance committee for several weeks, after having been put through the house.

The question before the committee's leaders today was whether the eight bills to re-enact the levies should be brought out now, in the face of a court decision invalidating an earlier tax on foreign corporations' franchises and the possibility of a drop in the estimated return from the capital stock tax.

Governor James has recommended the legislature go ahead and enact the program, gambling the cost of a possible special session later against the money the taxes would bring in if higher courts uphold state appeals.

Meanwhile, keeping up their hopes of adjournment by the middle of next month, republicans charged with the responsibility of appropriating money for state-owned and state-aided institutions and the general costs of government, met to consider the allocations under the governor's $537,000,000 budget.

Their calculations depended upon the revenues the state expects to collect in the next two years, a matter of considerable uncertainty.

Financing has something to do, also, with relief legislation under consideration in the house. A subcommittee of assemblymen was meeting today in an effort to satisfy both major parties concerning relief proposals. One would let county boards put relief recipients to work, and take civil service from some employees in the department of public assistance; another would tighten regulations of "chiselers" and provide a set up which would qualify Pennsylvania for more millions of federal money for dependent children and the blind.

The subject of state and local taxation was closely interlocked also with the acute problem of state aid for school districts, mostly in the anthracite fields, that have been "broke" for months because of declining collections.

A million-dollar appropriation bill that has passed the house is ready for second reading when the senate reconvenes. It could be passed finally and receive the governor's signature tomorrow.

Also near the top of the legislature's heap of matters under consideration were the governor's proposal to establish a Department of Commerce to stimulate industrial activity, a bill to put boost prices on out-of-state liquor and tighten restrictions on sale of beer and liquor, and measures to outlaw fireworks other than public supervised displays and cap pistols.

Outside the legislative halls, the department of Public Assistance made cheery news with a report showing removal of more than 13,000 persons from the relief rolls in the first week of April. It said the reduction was the "sharpest weekly drop since mid-November."

The number of hogs in the United States increased by nearly 5,000,000 head in 1938.

A good time to prune spring flowering shrubs is just after the flowering period.

COUPLE WEDS HERE

James Henry Montgomery, Norristown, and Edwyna Alberta Alexander, Sharon, Pa., were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Seth C. Morrow, pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church, in a ceremony performed in the parsonage on East High street. The single ring ceremony was used. There were no attendants. The bride wore a blue ensemble and a corsage of pink and tulle roses. They will reside in Norristown.

PROJECT NEARLY COMPLETED

State College, Pa., (AP)—Completion of the 11 buildings in the general state authority's $5,000,000 construction program at the Pennsylvania State college by June 1 was predicted today by a spokesman for McCloskey and company, Philadelphia contracting firm. Two of the buildings begun a year ago have been turned over to the college, two more are ready for installation of equipment, four are 99 per cent completed and three 95 per cent finished.

NO EARLY BIRD

Richlandtown, Pa., April 17 (AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Ahlum doesn't attribute her longevity to following the old adage "early to bed, early to rise, etc." The 95-year-old cigar factory employee said today she likes to stay up past midnight and then sleep all morning.

CARLISLE CIVIL WAR VETERAN EXPIRES

August D. Albright, one of Carlisle's two Civil War veterans, died Sunday afternoon at his home. He was 94 years old.

Albright served two enlistments in the Union army during the Civil war, first joining Company C, 84th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, in August, 1862, when he was 13 years old.

He re-enlisted at Carlisle in 1865 with Carlisle garrison of the 149th Regiment, Pennsylvania Bucktails, with whom he served until the end of the war. Albright used to recall seeing Lincoln when the President visited the Union lines at Petersburg, Virginia.

A native of Carlisle Springs, he was a son of the late Solomon and Caroline Cornman Albright.

The only other Civil War veteran in Carlisle is James K. Snyder.

Says Only Few Alimony Payments Are Justified

San Francisco, April 17 (AP)—Alimony in America has grown into a billion dollar annual business, and only a fraction of the alimony payments are justifiable, Dr. S. L. Katzoff, San Francisco domestic dilemma expert, estimated today.

Two billion dollars more, Doctor Katzoff said in an interview, are paid out every year to lawyers, courts and individuals active in "ironing out" marriage difficulties—which are not "ironed out" at all, except superficially.

large measure has been undermined," declared Katzoff.

Doctor Katzoff said at least four changes were necessary in the alimony system before many cautious American men would ever harbor thoughts of marriage. He listed these as:

Alimony laws should be made universal in all states;

Alimony should be given only in cases of actual need;

Proceeding in bankruptcy should discharge alimony as it does other debt;

The husband should not be imprisoned for non-payment if he is able to prove financial disability.

Of 300,967 farm families in North Carolina, 209,643 have home gardens, 47,686 of them year-round gardens.

To soften dried fruits (prunes, apricots, peaches) quicker, soak them in hot, not boiling, water.

The Nevada legislation has voted down a bill to establish a state lottery.

NEW KIND OF TIRE

SWEEPS WET ROADS SO DRY

YOU CAN LIGHT A MATCH ON ITS TRACK!

LIFE-SAVER TREAD ACTS LIKE A BATTERY OF WINDSHIELD WIPERS

Read How This Road-Drying Sensation Gives You Quickest Non-Skid Stops On The Road!

SENSATIONAL? You bet! For here at Silvertown is a tire that automatically sweeps wet roads dry—so dry, in fact, that after a quick stop you can actually light matches on its track—convincing proof that the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown will give you the quickest non-skid stops you've ever had!

And here's the secret of this tire's amazing road-drying ability: As the never-ending spiral bars of the Life-Saver Tread roll over a dangerous film of water, they act like a rapid-fire battery of windshield wipers—sweep the water right and left—force it out through the deep drainage grooves—make a DRY TRACK for the rubber to grip. The very first time you've experienced a SILVERTOWN STOP on a wet slippery pavement you'll realize that you have found a new kind of protection.

NO EXTRA COST!

And whether roads are wet or dry, Silvertowns AT ALL TIMES give you that other great life-saving protection—the famous Golden Ply. By resisting internal tire heat, this exclusive Golden Ply invention provides you with scientific protection against dangerous high-speed blow-outs.

But remember, to protect yourself against a possible skid or blow-out tomorrow, you must act today. For safety's sake come in and have your car equipped with streamlined Goodrich Safety Silvertowns. There is no extra cost!

BEST LAST YEAR—BEST THIS YEAR!

In two series of non-skid tests the regular and premium-priced tires of America's six largest tire manufacturers, including new tires which have just been introduced, were tested by the famous independent Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory. Here's their report:

"The new Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread gave greater skid resistance than any other tire tested, including not only the old established tires of these manufacturers—some listed at 40% to 70% higher in price—but also the new tires which were recently tested under the same road conditions."
